

At last he emerged, high over the land,
On the towering peak of a mountain so grand.
There stood a volcano, roaring with might,
Spewing its fire in a terrible sight!

Popcorn stood trembling, ready to flee,
But something strange stirred suddenly.
He felt a great weight, turned with surprise —
Two wings had spread from his back to the skies!